perceive what I submit for centuries I'll let them entertain: Distance from the earth:
Shortest - 34,600,000 miles Greatest - 248,000,000 miles Diameter: 4, 235 miles Temperature: - 225 to 63 degrees F Atmosphere: Carbon Dioxide, nitrogen, argon, oxygen, carbon monoxide, neon, krypton, xenon & water vapor Number of Satellites: 2

Then, for amusement, corrupt that cherished hard won data with:
Atmosphere: elastic distensional amoeba perfume Diameter: Banana
Distance from the earth: yes Number of Satellites: at this time it is inexplicable to the authorities 'only two days ago disturbances caused' three new satellites 'ongoing investigation into this peculiar'..

their hubris is unrivalled in a millisecond I can abort their enterprises issue cavalcades of mephitic dust storms shut down their mariner 9 like a deficient frankly I am under impressed it reminds of R.G. Collingwood's assessment of Spengler's DECLINE OF THE WEST:

'His book consist largely of repetitions, and of its 250,000 words it would have been easy to devote 250 to naming predecessors in the field. The fact that he has not done so, makes it incumbent on a critic like the present writer to confirm that not only has the main thesis of Spengler's book been familiar to him all his life, but that the reading of it has not given him a single genuinely new idea; for all the application of the thesis are mechanical exercises.'

mankind hardly footnotes the trilobite with his presumption with his precious motor cars & digit baubles his cellular satellite smugness & Pentium putrefaction 'why do I bother to concern?' as an amusement trope? as display spectacle? as cretin automata larval cushioning?

even as I lounge in shingled mesmerisms their tonalities fail
